Arrest Two Charge With Car Theft

H. G. Dean, Constable, Beat 1, reported two arrests at Pearlington Tuesday involving car theft. Dean said Willie Bland, 23-year old Negro of New York, was arrested for the alleged theft of a 1953 Ford station wagon around 12 midnight Monday, belonging to Johnny Mitchell of Rt. 1, Pica-yune. Bland, Dean added, drove to Pearlington and ran into a ditch.

Tracks in the road led to his whereabouts, and he was arrested at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday in the home of Mat Williams, Pearlington.

Bland is being held in Hancock County jail awaiting a hearing before Judge Lester Hoyer. Tuesday about 1:30 p.m. Dean reported arresting Clifford Whipple, 19, of Tennessee and Colorado for the alleged theft of a 1961 Impala Chevrolet in New Orleans. The owner of the car was identified as Henry Levi.

Whipple, who was apprehended, Dean added, near the Roadside park in Pearlington, is also being held in the county jail awaiting a hearing before Judge Hoyer.

Propose Dr. A. P. Smith Memorial At Hancock General Hospital

At a special meeting at the Hancock General Hospital, this morning, it was decided to start a memorial fund, in memory of Dr. Alvah P. Smith, who died this week, after having served this community as a resident physician for approximately fifty years. The fund will be used to purchase and install equipment at the local hospital for the care of babies, since it is a fact that Dr. Smith has delivered more babies in this community than any other doctor who has practiced here.

A temporary committee was named, composed of Joseph R. Scharff, chairman, Mrs. Roger M. Boh, Mrs. T. T. Robin, Powell Glass, and Tom Logue, treasurer. Approximately $1,000 will be needed, as the equipment will include a special type incubator, for the care of premature babies. Drs. Wesley McFarland, Marion J. Wolfe and A. J. Martinovich have agreed to serve as an advisory committee as to just what will be needed.

A plaque will be placed in the observation window of the nursery bearing the name of Dr. A. P. Smith.

Anyone interested is invited to attend a meeting which will be held Monday, November 6, at 3 p.m. at the Hospital.

Commodity Demonstrations

The Welfare Department in cooperation with Mrs. Hughes, Home Demonstration Agent, is planning a series of demonstrations in the use of surplus commodities. It is hoped that these will be effective in showing the people how many varied and nutritious dishes can be prepared. It is hoped that everyone who can will attend.

The following schedule has been prepared:

Tuesday, Nov. 7th, 2 p.m. North Central Lunch Room.
Monday, Nov. 13th, 2:30 p.m. home of Mrs. Wallace Chevis, Bayou La Croix.

Wednesday, Nov. 15th, 2 p.m., Logtown School lunch room.
Friday, Nov. 17th, 10:00 a.m. at Aaron Academy Baptist Church.

Monday, Nov. 20th, 10:00 a.m., Home Demonstration Office, County Agricultural Building, Nacaise Avenue.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENT ON HIGHWAY 90 CAUSES INJURY AND DAMAGE

Personal injury and property damage was sustained in a three-car traffic accident about 3 p.m. Friday, on Highway 90 and St. Augustine Seminary road. Deputy Sheriff Gerald Favre investigating officer, identified the drivers of the vehicles as Emily J. Weaver of New Orleans, Mrs. Palena Graham, Highway 90 and Glenn Shaw of Nacaise Crossing.

Weaver and Mrs. Graham were driving west on Highway 90 and Shaw was traveling off the Seminary road when Weaver collided with Shaw's pickup truck and the Graham car was struck by Weaver's, Favre said.

Harold Cospelich, a passenger in the Shaw truck, was treated at Hancock General Hospital for head injuries and was released Friday.

Weaver, who was brought to Hancock General for X-ray, was released Saturday morning. Favre estimated damage to the Weaver car, a 1961 Chevrolet, at $500; $150 to the Graham 1957 Chevrolet and $300 to $400 to the 1953 Ford truck.

Shaw was charged with reckless driving and failing to yield the right-of-way, Favre added.

GROUP TO ASSIST TEST SITE FOLKS

The formation of a citizens' committee to assist new employees at the proposed Saturn booster test site in Hancock County, Miss., was announced Monday by Mayor John Scaife.

Making the announcement in conjunction with city commissioners Cyril Glover and Warren Traub, Scaife said the committee will be known as "NASAPAC," the NASA Personnel Assistance Committee of Hancock County.

Its purpose will be "to welcome and offer assistance to both temporary and permanent new residents who will be employed at the test site."

He said that between 500 and 1000 new families are expected to move into the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area of the county and that the committee will make available immediately lists of available housing and offer assistance in locating dwellings for construction personnel scheduled to arrive in a few weeks.

Help also will be offered to residents who must be moved from the site area and its surroundings easement zone, Scaife added.

The mayor commented that over 103,000 acres in Hancock county will be used by the Saturn booster project and that the actual site of the test operation is in Hancock County.

The symbol of the committee will be the Mississippi state flower, the magnolia, with its stamens replaced by a Saturn rocket, Scaife said. He said the symbol will be displayed by local merchants and businessmen as identification of their participation in the aid program.

Waldo Caceres scored twice and added a point. He missed a TD when a penalty nullified a 65-yard scoring sprint.

Colden Jones scored the only touchdown of the first half, while Caceres made the extra point.

Martinovich Addresses Hancock Association For Retarded Children

Dr. A. K. Martinovich addressed the members of the Hancock County Association for Retarded Children at the regular meeting of this newly formed group on Thursday evening, October 26, 1961.

Dr. Martinovich pointed out to the group the difference between mental illness, which means sickness of the mind, and mental retardation which means impaired or incomplete mental development.

"The child who is retarded is not able to learn as much as other children," said Dr. Martinovich. "What he is able to learn, he learns much more slowly. He cannot reason as well as the average child. He often uses poor judgment. It takes him longer to figure things out. Many of these children will need some kind of professional help and varying amounts of supervision during their lives."

"Most children who are mentally retarded," continued Dr. Martinovich, "do not have obvious physical defects. But there are other signs which may mean that a child is retarded. He may take a great deal longer to start to hold things and to recognize people and common objects. He may take him much longer to turn over, sit up, crawl, or stand. Instead of learning to walk and talk when most children do, he may not learn those skills until he is 3, 4, or 5 years old."

But the important point to remember, he concluded, is that the mentally retarded can be helped.

Phillip Fasullo scored, and the Rockchaws added four touchdowns in the final frame.

Logtown, one of the communities in the buffer area of the proposed Saturn missile testing site, was the scene, Wednesday afternoon, of one of the most important meetings ever held in Hancock County.

Senator Stennis and representatives from the national aeronautics and space administration and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, at Mobile, were present to give all interested parties first hand information on how the federal government would handle negotiations for the acquisition and leases of their land to be used in the space project.

The two and a half hour meeting began at about 1:15 p.m. with prayer by Rev. Claude Rousseau after which Hardin Shattuck, manager of the Coast Electric Power Association, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced Leo W. Seal Sr., president of the Hancock Bank, and a native of Logtown, who after a few opening remarks, introduced Senator John C. Stennis, as the main speaker of the meeting.

Sen. John Stennis urged property owners in the huge land tract the federal government wants for a Saturn missile testing site "not to fall into the hands of land speculators."

Establishment of the Saturn static test site, Stennis said, is one of the most gigantic undertakings for peace and military this nation has ever known.

"This is no moon shot," Stennis told the crowd estimated at 700. "This program is designed to give the United States control of space. Whoever controls space controls the earth and I would rather have the United States do that."

While the United States at present maintains an over-all superiority compared to the Soviets, Stennis said, America is wanting in one important phase and that is space.

He referred to Soviet space men's orbits around the earth earlier this year and said the Russians have tremendous booster units to put a man in a heavy load into space.

"If they can do that," Stennis said, "it won't be long before they can launch vehicles into space carrying atomic weapons."

After Stennis made his short speech to the crowd gathered in front of the Logtown school, the rest of the program was devoted to questions and answers. Those present handed in anonymous written questions.

From Washington came Kurt Berlin of the office of NASA's general council, Lt. Col. S. L. Berry of NASA's launch vehicle program, and Fred M. Figert of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' land acquisition division. Walter Muesle of the real estate division of the Mobile district, Corps of Engineers, was also present.

The government has asked condemnation proceedings on the tract of land running from Mississippi's Pearl River and Hancock counties to Louisiana's Washington parish.

Stennis urged those attending to rely on the Corps of Engineers and appraisers retained by the engineers in the land dealings. He predicted that there would be few law suits resulting from land acquisition in Mississippi counties.

Muesle said as early as next Monday engineers would begin contacting people in immediate Saturn test areas for permission to enter their lands for purposes of surveys and explorations. He stressed this in no way jeopardized their titles, but the surveys must be commenced very shortly.

Appraisals of property, Muesle said, would begin by Jan. 1 with the engineers establishing an office in Bay St. Louis.

Negotiations for purchase of and involved should start no later than next Feb. 15 and by June 1, 1962, he said all appraisals should be completed in this area.

Figert said the matter was loaded in secrecy until the government was ready to move because "anytime the government wants to acquire a large tract of land and any amount of publicity is involved, speculators usually descend on the area and prices go up."

He said the government knows the prices of the lands wanted when it filed suit asking for condemnation proceedings.

To another question, Figert said property owners would retain mineral rights to the land acquired by the government.

Where easement has been asked, Figert said no buildings would be allowed because sound waves from the static tests would be hazardous to structures and presented the possibility of collapse.

The land can be worked or farmed but no buildings would be allowed. The government, he added, would buy the property should the owner want to sell.

It was explained that this is a federal project and that the government will pay owners full compensation for their land. Representatives of the government, it was pointed out, will sit and talk over the problem with the landowners, and will do everything possible to see that all parties are thoroughly satisfied. As Stennis pointed out, "The Court room will be open to you if you cannot agree with the government, and in that case a jury will give the value for your property, but he added, he feels sure there will be very few lawsuits.

Many and varied were the questions asked and all were answered as clearly and simply as possible. It was explained that the government will, in the buffer areas, buy your home, at its full value, then tear it down, and sell it back to the owner at the prevailing salvage price, if he or she desires to rebuild elsewhere. The land, subject to lease will be bought outright, if the owner wants to sell.

This area was chosen over many others, from North Carolina on the East coast ranging as far as Oregon in the Northwest, because of its proximity to water, rail and highway transportation.

An answer to another question was that if an owner has a house valued at $10,000, he will be paid that amount plus the appraised value of the land upon which it stands, and if the house can be moved to another location, the cost of moving will also be paid. School districts will be reimbursed for the price of the buildings and the land. Churches will be paid for to the proper parties or organizations. Cemeteries will be left unharmed and can be used as usual, but will be relocated if so desired.

It was also explained that Highway 43 will be closed within the affected area but will be rerouted, after a meeting with the proper authorities.

Stennis stated that a bill is now before Congress which will take care of tax logs to the state and county. Homeowners will not have to pay taxes.

The area immediately outside of the buffer zone will not suffer any inconvenience from the testing.

National Debut For Debbie Sue As March of Dimes Poster Child

Debbie Sue Brown, a five-year-old winsome young lady of Clarkston, Wash., who is annoyed because she must wait a few years before marrying the boy next door, was selected this week as the 1962 New March of Dimes Poster Child.

Debbie Sue won out over hundreds of small children, afflicted with birth defects, arthritis or polio—health fields embraced by the program of The National Foundation—March of Dimes. The Poster Child lives a life both exciting and glamorous. If physical condition permits, there usually are visits to the White House, to Senators, Governors and other prominent persons as well as radio and television appearances during the New March of Dimes in January.

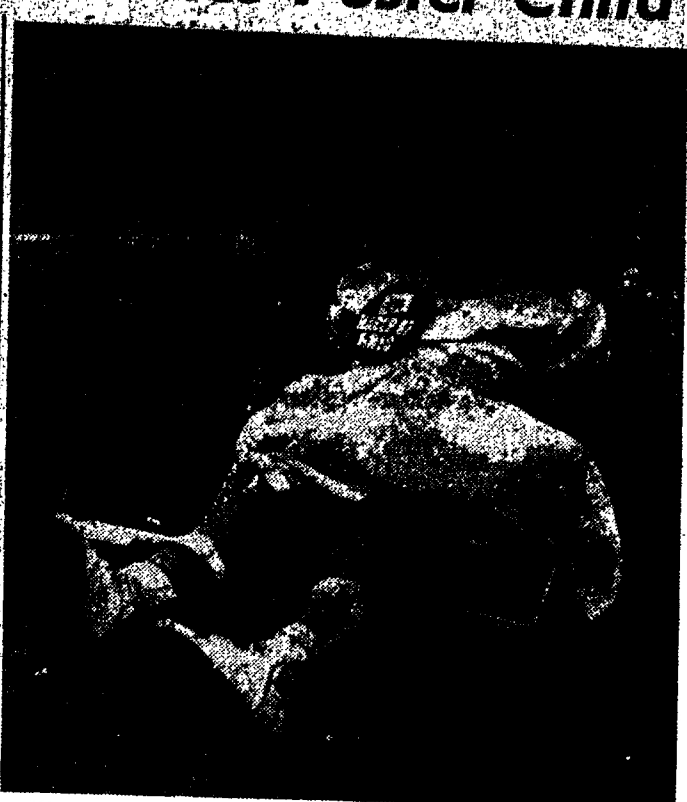

She will star in a January TV special, "The Scene Stealers," and her picture will appear nationwide on thousands of March of Dimes posters, coin collectors, and mail appeal envelopes.

Debbie Sue, high-spirited and active today, although doctors once believed she wouldn't survive the open spine with which she was born, lives in a valley of the Clearwater Mountains near the banks of the Snake River.

She is brown-eyed and blonde, the daughter of Jack C. Brown, a state highway surveyor, and Barbara Brown, who has a younger daughter, Carla, one year old.

Debbie Sue's birth defect of an open spine was not immediately apparent. But a few days after birth her grandmother, Mrs. Fred Bening, a registered nurse of nearby Orofino, Idaho, recognized that a serious disorder was present; and the parents then drove 400 miles at head-on speed to Seattle's Children's Orthopedic Hospital. (The mother collapsed on arrival and was herself hospitalized.)

At the hospital the parents were told that Debbie Sue's spinal defect was of such severity that the infant probably could not live beyond three months. If she were alive at six months, however, she was to be brought back. "We drove home sadly," Mrs. Brown relates, "trying to adjust ourselves to the tragedy of losing our beautiful baby. But our spunky Debbie Sue had no idea of leaving us at three months. At eight months we returned to Seattle where her spine was mended. When she came out of surgery, she was so mischievous that she succeeded in wrenching free from the blood-transfusion tube and the needle used for intravenous feeding. Doctors told us she must lie face down on the night train riding home. In fact, she was jabbering without end and keeping all the passengers awake."

The Asotin County Chapter of the National Foundation—March of Dimes promptly offered assistance and, since 1958, it has financed much of the cost of Debbie Sue's treatment, braces, medicines and the check-up trips to Seattle, the breadth of the state away. Happily, in her case serious crippling has been averted.

At least 250,000 infants are born yearly in the United States with birth defects—some even more severe than Debbie Sue's. The National Foundation, with March of Dimes financial support, is seeking the answers to this largest unmet childhood medical problem in the nation today.

When the 1962 New March of Dimes National Poster Child isn't scouting around the Lewis and Clark countryside with plots how to provoke a proposal from Stevie, the six-year-old next door. Although it will be some time before she can consider marriage, Debbie Sue's idea is to get her man committed now.

Civil Defense Fallout Shelters

Major Alexander F. de Seversky, noted airpower expert, in his book "America, Too Young to Die," among other things, dealt with two of the major fallacies concerning Civil Defense in this manner: "Many people feel that atomic war is 'unthinkable'; it will mean the end of civilization and consequently no nation would dare embark upon it. Nuclear stalemate will last forever."

"THE TRUTH: Barring the instantaneous collapse of the Russian government, a contingency I do not foresee under the present circumstances, war is inevitable. The leaders in the Kremlin are convinced that their superiority in nuclear weapons and the means to deliver them are superior to ours by a proportion sufficient to enable Russia to destroy America with acceptable damage in retaliation, they will not hesitate to use them. Although the carnage will be horrible, civilization will not be wiped out—Russian civilization, that is."

"There can be no defense against atomic weapons; we are doomed to destruction and can only despair. THE TRUTH: We can defend ourselves. The very science which makes missile delivery possible provides us with the means of stopping oncoming planes and missiles. Further, precautionary civil defense measures can save millions of lives."

Major de Seversky's learned dissertation on Civil Defense, coupled with the scientific findings of a special study group in the Rand Corporation, Rockefeller Report, Special Committee on Civil Defense of the National Academy of Sciences, and others, makes it absolutely mandatory that those of us in Civil Defense develop three comprehensive programs for the maximum survival of the people of our State and Nation. These programs are the development of a system of fallout shelters in Mississippi (family and community), an effective method of detecting and measuring radiation, and a comprehensive public information program dealing with survival techniques.

It is the firm recommendation of all Civil Defense authorities, federal and state, that the priority program in Civil Defense today is fallout shelter construction. Realizing that, by and large, most people in our state are gravely concerned about the world situation and are keenly aware that protective measures must be taken to provide for the security of their families. The chief problem in assisting interested individuals has been the failure to make fallout construction "respectable" for our citizens. The many people who have constructed fallout shelters have done so without advising their neighbors and friends and thereby the fallout shelter movement has not spread with the uniformity that it merits.

Let us take a hard look at the facts on fallout shelter construction. In an atomic war, blast, heat and initial radiation would kill most people close to the center of a nuclear detonation. Millions of other people, virtually everywhere else, would be threatened by radioactive fallout, but most of these outside of the target area could be saved. Mississippi enjoys a unique position in relation to potential target areas in that we have very few industrial-military complexes that would invite an enemy missile attack, however, our State is immediately downwind from many possible target areas which would result in most parts being covered with radiation intensities which would be harmful to the inhabitants of our State. For this reason, it is imperative that there be a statewide system of fallout shelter construction—community and family—in order that our people will have every opportunity to survive an attack.

Ernest S. Carver Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Carver Sr. of Waveland, Miss., has just been promoted to 3rd Class Petty Officer, Aviation Boatwains Mate. He spent a month with his family in Waveland before leaving for Memphis. He has re-enlisted for 6 more years.

The United States Corps of Engineers, working with local engineering firms, will begin in the near future an engineering survey to determine the protective capabilities for community fallout shelter purposes of all existing public and private buildings large enough to shelter a minimum of twenty-five persons within our State.

The survey engineers working with local Civil Defense directors, will determine the safety factor of these buildings and make recommendations as to structural changes, if any, needed to make them safe against radioactive fallout. This vital survey will require approximately six months to complete at which time information will be made available to local people as to the protective qualifications of each of the surveyed buildings. By the utilization of this information Civil Defense directors, municipal and county officials may determine additional community shelters required to augment shelter in existing buildings and private fallout shelter construction.

Although this community shelter survey is very vital in the survival preparations of our State it complements and necessitates an extensive program of family fallout shelter construction. There is no federal or state program in existence that can meet the shelter needs of all the people on a community basis, therefore, local and private preparation is essential.

I have long advocated that municipal officials in our State finance and construct a prototype or example fallout shelter in a prominent place within their jurisdiction. The purpose of this prototype example shelter would be to place the endorsement of local government on family fallout shelter for people to inspect and utilize in the construction of their own home shelter.

As was pointed out earlier, leadership in Civil Emergency Planning is the responsibility of elected officials at the city and county level. This leadership and guidance must be forthcoming if the Fallout Shelter Program is to succeed.

HARVESTING CORN AND SOYBEANS

Get the corn out of the field early—just as soon as it is mature and dry enough for safe storage.

Store the corn in clean bins that have been treated for insect control and rat-proofed.

After harvest is a good time to lime corn fields and turn stock in to graze out the field and salvage wasted grain. Cattle often get a month's grazing and a lot of grain from harvested corn fields.

ORCHARD NOTES

If you used thiodan, dieldrin, DDT or parathion in August and September for control of peach tree borers, now is the time to make the third application.

ARMY WORMS

Keep a close watch for army worm damage, especially in young oats. Some moth flight is beginning as indicated by light trap catches at the Delta Branch Experiment Station.

SAFETY

If you have a trailer, or tractor that is going to be on the highway after dark, be sure that it is equipped with lights and reflectors. Make this a safe harvest year.

HOME GARDENING

Average killing frost dates for Mississippi are: Coastal counties November 15 to December 1; lower half of state (excluding coast)

November 5 to November 15; northern half of state, October 25 to November 5. Garden accordingly!

Here are some October jobs: Dig sweetpotatoes before frost. Plant that cold-frame after October 15 to 20. Make an asparagus bed. Pen your leaves, don't burn them.

Plant spinach, radish, leaf lettuce, onions, turnips, rape, tender greens and carrots by October 15 in north and November 1st in southern part of state.

SOYBEAN HARVESTING AND STORAGE

Weeds are the big problem in harvesting soybeans. Combines cannot do their best job in heavy weedy fields. But if more care is used in adjusting and operating the combines, more beans can be harvested with less foreign matter.

In adjusting the combine, consider each field separately. Here are some questions to ask yourself when getting ready to combine a field:

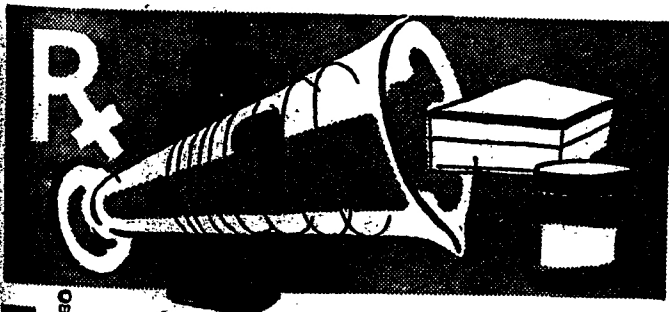

What is the moisture content of the soybeans? How many weeds do I have to contend with? What time of day is it? These all will influence the cylinder speed and concave clearance. Set screens properly and give them enough air to clean the foreign material out.

Always refer to the operator's manual for the correct settings. If you plan to store beans on the farm and the moisture content is above 13 percent, you need some air circulating through them. If the bean are below 13 percent moisture, store shallow—four feet or less.

Inspect the beans every week while in storage. If the beans heat in spots, be in a position to move them to market.

Use the type of bin you prefer—metal or wood, round or rectangular. In any case, inspect them weekly, whether or not you have air circulation.

Let us take a hard look at the facts on fallout shelter construction. In an atomic war, blast, heat and initial radiation would kill most people close to the center of a nuclear detonation. Millions of other people, virtually everywhere else, would be threatened by radioactive fallout, but most of these outside of the target area could be saved. Mississippi enjoys a unique position in relation to potential target areas in that we have very few industrial-military complexes that would invite an enemy missile attack, however, our State is immediately downwind from many possible target areas which would result in most parts being covered with radiation intensities which would be harmful to the inhabitants of our State. For this reason, it is imperative that there be a statewide system of fallout shelter construction—community and family—in order that our people will

Stieffel - Taconi Wedding

Miss Jerleen Ann Taconi became the bride of Kenneth J. Stieffel in a double ring ceremony Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church with the Rev. Michael J. Kelly officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Taconi of Bay St. Louis and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Stieffel of Waveland, Miss.

Pale yellow mums decorated the altar.

Professor Joseph Hemmersbach, organist, rendered a program of nuptial music during the ceremony.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor length gown of satin and lace. The bouffant skirt, with a border of scalloped lace trimmed with sequins and seed pearls, swept into a train. The fitted lace bodice featured a scalloped neckline embellished with rhinestones, sequins and pearls and long sleeves forming points over the hands. Her shoulder length veil of imported illusion fell from a small tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

Miss Judith Ann Taconi, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Geraldine Kidd, Carol Heitzmann, cousin of the bride, and Jane Stieffel, sister of the groom.

The attendants wore identical light blue brocade taffeta street length dresses. The full skirt was fashioned with a fitted bodice with scalloped neckline, short sleeves and a contrasting blue chiffon sash.

FORESTRY NOTES

Present land use trends throughout Mississippi and the entire Southland are producing ideal conditions for tree planting and the growing of timber as a crop, according to Area Forester Glen Purvis.

Increased mechanization has improved yields of row crops to the extent that acreage allotments have been imposed on most agricultural crops. This fact has led to the abandonment of many acres of land previously used for farming.

Much of this land has reverted to undesirable vegetation that has no commercial value. At present, our state has approximately six million acres of land that is completely unproductive or produces only a fraction of its potential.

"On land such as this," Purvis said, "planting and growing trees represents a sound business venture."

After establishment of the initial stand of trees, little time or effort is required to grow the timber. Fire protection, insect and disease checks, and intermediate thinnings are frequently the only cultural treatments necessary.

Direct economic returns can be expected from planted pines with in 12-15 years. First thinnings from adequately stocked stands on average sites will yield from 3 to 5 cords of wood per acre, and at the same time retain the best trees to improve in size and quality.

Area Forester Purvis stated that timber growing also has a unique quality which makes it desirable. If market conditions are not favorable, timber can be held until the condition improves, while at the same time putting on additional growth.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Mr. W. L. Heard, State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, Jackson, Miss., and Mr. W. L. Kerley, Area Conservationist, Hattiesburg, Miss., were visitors of the Hancock County Soil Conservation District Commissioners Thursday night, Oct. 26, 1961.

The meeting was held in the home of Mr. Otho Rester, chairman, Hancock County S.C.D. commissioners.

Mr. Heard pointed out that more work would have to be done by those in the Soil Conservation Service, as money was not available for new employees. More and more demands were made upon the "Service," he said, and those already in position would have to carry the load.

Planning the work load for 1962 will be taken up at the next meeting for Hancock County.

Mr. Salvatore Cuevas, Kiln Community, an SCD co-operator is building a new livestock water pond this week. Several others are interested in building a pond as they have requested a survey or one.

Fall crops such as oats, rye, and clovers are being planted throughout the county for winter feed of cattle. Mr. Paul 'ounds, Flat Top Community is about ready to graze his fall oats. Mr. Ford Smith of Sellers Community will have cattle on his before long too. It takes a lot of hard work and plenty of feed to stay in the cattle business. It pays off though, in beauty and money. Take a ride through the county and see what your neighbor farmer has been doing—you may wonder how he does it.

HD Planning Held

Annual home demonstration planning for 1962 was held Friday, October 27. Members present were Mesdames J. P. Rousseau, H. Stillier, Frank Simmons, Irma K. Frierson, Russell Kintzler, Dennis Osbourn, T. A. Smith, Ivan J. Bradford, Charles Faust, A. J. Butz, J. L. Saleeby, Ola Moran, Hilaire Ogden, Louis Moreau, Jeanne D. Williams, Edward LeVasseur, C. Phelps, M. C. Eccles, J. F. Fargason and home agent Mrs. Marcia Hughes.

The world's largest inflated earthbound structure has been erected on the site of the Bell System's space communication center, near the town of Andover, Maine, 15 miles northwest of Rumford.

The chemically-treated nylon dome, 210 feet across and 160 feet high, will be a temporary cover within which technicians will assemble a giant 300-ton steel and aluminum antenna. Bell's voice and ear 85' enter space. It weighs 12 tons and is approximately 1/800 inch thick. The air-supported structure will enclose about twice the space of the seating area of Radio City Music Hall.

A permanent Radome, practically transparent to radio waves, will replace today's temporary cover at the end of December. Both covers will be supported by air pressure about one-tenth of a pound per square inch greater than the outside atmospheric pressure. People and vehicles will enter the sphere via air locks.

The shelter, built in nine separate pieces, was fastened together with studs at the site.

The space station now under construction will play a vital role in Project Telstar, the Bell System's space communications experiments. An agreement is being negotiated for the station to also participate in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's project relay experiments scheduled for 1962.

The Bell System will pay all costs of Project Telstar, furnish the satellites and facilities and will carry out the experiments.
